Community Development

Growing Communities God's Way

Be a Change-Agent with Resilience

Being a change-agent in a developing community is greatly rewarding but doesn't come without its stresses and difficulties. It is not uncommon to put a lot of energy into a community development project only to have results and community response less than what you had hoped for.

This Twelve-Day Retreat is a unique opportunity to explore Biblical community development principles at the same time as creating space to reflect on the impact your current experiences as a community development practitioner are having on your relationship with God, yourself and the people around you.

Community Development Seminar

The Community Development training is a highly interactive training opportunity where participants will learn principles that will help communities discover the roots of their problems and design initiatives that address the felt-needs of the community, build and strengthen relationships, restore dignity, and promote equality within the community.

Topics covered include

- Biblical worldview of Development
- Kingdom of God and Development
- Biblical Principles of Development
- Appreciative Inquiry
- Paternalism vs. Partnership

Personal Debrief

A biblically grounded, guided process of reflection and evaluation that combines group and individual meetings with a debriefer. You will have ample opportunity to tell your story and how you have personally been affected by events and experiences, including your triumphs, disappointments, conflicts and other changes and concerns.

Trainers and Debriefers

All trainers and debriefers are experienced field workers who have also faced similar difficulties and questions as they have sought to disciple communities into God's full potential.
